Facsimile copies of correspondence, maps, and reports with theses and dissertations [4 reels 35-mm. microfilm, 14 reels 16-mm. microfilm, 80 aperture cards, and 2 monographs] pertaining to the Ysleta del Sur Pueblo (or Tigua) and Apache of Texas and New Mexico. The Tigua Pueblo of El Paso, Texas, is descended from Tiwa Indians displaced by the 1680 Pueblo Revolt in New Mexico who gradually lost their status as Indians after the 1848 Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo. The Tigua achieved United States federal acknowledgement in 1968, with federal trust responsibilities transferred in 1987.

In accomplishing their legal achievements, tribal representatives compiled these facsimile copies from original documents held by U.S. National Archives, the Smithsonian Institution National Anthropological Archives, and other institutions. Alphabetical and numerical indices to the microfilm are also included [2 microfiche]. The tribe produced the microfilm in 1992-1993 following its successful petition for recognition. Marquette University then was one of several repositories to receive a set as a gift in 2002.

Related materials are also located in the Bureau of Catholic Indian Missions Records in the Marquette University Memorial Library, Department of Special Collections and University Archives.
