St. Mary's University College

About London

London, England's capital, is the most populous and wealthiest city of Great Britain. It offers a cosmopolitan mixture of different cultures and traditions. Students can find an endless list of world-class museums, monuments, buildings, churches and historical sites. London is also well known for its food, clothing and flower markets across the city.

The areas of Piccadilly and Leicester Square offer many opportunities to experience London's theaters, and students can purchase discount tickets to many of the productions. Other famous sights include the Tower of London, Shakespeare's Globe Theater, the London Eye, Buckingham Palace, and St. Paul's Cathedral.

London is also at the heart of the world's financial markets. It has a high concentration of international expertise and capital, and it has a great legal and regulatory system to support it. The city's governing authority, the Corporation of London, is committed to maintaining and promoting an environment with global trade and development.

About the University

Established in 1850, St. Mary's is an established University College with a reputation for high quality courses. St Mary's is modern and friendly, offering the best of both worlds. With just under 4,000 students it's easy to feel at home quickly, but big enough to offer all the challenges and excitement of a full and rewarding student life.

The buildings are steeped in history being set in the grounds of the original Strawberry Hill mansion, a world famous example of the Gothic Revival style. The peaceful, self-contained campus also includes modern and well-resourced teaching blocks, accommodation, Learning Resources Centre and sport facilities.

The university is located in a leafy part of South West London where a green space is never very far away and Central London is only 30 minutes by train.
