Transfusion Medicine Masters (June 2013)
At the completion of the Transfusion Medicine Masters degree program, the graduate is able to:

1. Students are aware of the fundamentals of ethical conduct in research

2. Students demonstrate responsible conduct of research with human subjects.

3. Students demonstrate critical thinking skills.

4. Students are able to effectively communicate knowledge to various audiences.

5. Students demonstrate baseline knowledge proficiency in selected areas of transfusion medicine.

6. Students are able to critically assess the application of the scientific method in Transfusion Medicine.

7. Students will be able to integrate knowledge from another academic discipline into Transfusion Medicine.

8. Students will demonstrate proficiency at the academic Master’s level in Transfusion Medicine.