At the completion of the Clinical Laboratory Science major, the graduate is able to:

1. Demonstrate entry-level knowledge of clinical laboratory science.

2. Analyze human biological specimens according to established protocol for accuracy and precision for each scientific discipline within the clinical laboratory.

3. Exhibit values consistent with ethical clinical laboratory science practice.