COUNSELING  M.A. (Community Counseling and School Counseling) (August 2006)
At the completion of the Counseling M.A. degree program, the graduate is able to:

1. Demonstrate knowledge and skills regarding the psychological foundations of human development and functioning including both normal development and psychopathology.

2. Demonstrate the counseling skills needed to competently engage in the entry-level practice of professional counseling.

3. Demonstrate knowledge of individual and cultural diversity so as to be able to implement psychosocial interventions competently with diverse individuals and groups.

4. Apply counseling-related research with regard to the adequacy of the methods used, practical and clinical significance, and relevance to diverse populations.

5. Demonstrate a commitment to life-long learning.