ECONOMICS M.S.A.E. (August 2006)
At the completion of the Applied Economics M.S.A.E. degree program, the graduate is able to:

1. Support decision making in the business and public policy arenas using the standard analytic tools of applied economic analysis.

2. Provide economic analysis to decision makers in both the private and public sectors.

3. Act as skilled translators and liaisons between various business and policy specialists within organizations.

4. Communicate effectively to convey the results and significance of their technical input and professional advice to both technical and non-technical audiences.