SOCIology (August 2006)
At the completion of the Sociology major, the graduate is able to:

1. Analyze how human behavior is shaped by individual and social factors.

2. Apply sociological perspectives to contemporary issues.

3. Use an appropriate empirical research method to describe and understand a social issue.