At the completion of the Speech Pathology and Audiology major, the graduate is able to:

1. Explain the processes involved in the acquisition and production of normal human (oral/aural) communication.

2. Explain the factors and influences in the development of a disorder of speech, language and/or hearing.

3. Remediate disorders of human communication under the direction and supervision of the Instructional Staff.

4. Gain entry and successfully complete a graduate program in speech-language pathology, audiology or related field.