

“I like teaching because it allows me to constantly learn and share ideas covering a wide range of topics that shape the world in which we live. Although I am new to Marquette, I look forward to working with the talented student body who have a reputation for academic excellence.”

Matthew D. Dalstrom

Adjunct Instructor

matthew.dalstrom@marquette.edu

Course Taught

- ANTH 1001 Introduction to Anthropology

Research Interests

- Medical anthropology, medical tourism, applied anthropology, globalization, Latin America and public policy

Education

- University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee
Ph.D. – Cultural Anthropology in progress
- Mississippi State University, M.A.
- The University of Georgia, B.A.

Professional Experience

- Teaching assistant and adjunct lecturer, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee (2005-present)
- Distance learning instructor, Central Texas College (2007-present)
- Teaching assistant, Mississippi State University (2004-2005)
- Counselor, Three Springs Inc. (2003-2004)

Presentations and Publications

- 2007 Bodies Beyond Borders: Dental Work and the Organ Trade, Unlikely Partners. Central States Anthropological Society Annual Meeting, Minneapolis, Minnesota
- 2007 Beyond Leisure: Medical Tourism Between the United States and Mexico. Global Currents 4 (1): 6-7
- 2006 In Search of Truth: The Reevaluation of Substances. Central State Anthropological Society Meeting, Omaha, Nebraska
- 2005 A Pill for Me An Herb for You: Acceptance or Rejection of Medicalization Among College Students. Starkville, MS. ProQuest Publishers