

Celebrating Non-Traditional Students

The college recognized our undergraduate adult learners at our annual celebration on Saturday, November 20, 2010. Approximately 60 people attended this event, including staff, faculty and students. The celebration included inspirational comments from Dean Bob Deahl and Father Michael Class, a pizza lunch, and a raffle drawing with prizes donated by college staff and faculty members as well as Marquette's Athletics Department, BookMarq, and Spirit Shop.

At colleges and universities across the nation, the first week in November is usually designated as National Non-Traditional Student Week. This week-long celebration began in 1996 by the Association for Non-Traditional Students in Higher Education (ANTSHE) to honor adult learners and the sacrifices they make to return to school. Our annual celebration continues to be meaningful to both the college and our students.

A very special thank you to those who helped plan and contribute to this event!
