Dr. Robert Fox Receives Lawrence G. Haggerty Faculty Award for Research Excellence
Released: April 7, 2016

Congratulations to Dr. Robert Fox, Professor in the Counselor Education and Counseling Psychology Department and Consulting Psychologist for the Behavior Clinic, on receiving the Lawrence G. Haggerty Faculty Award for Research Excellence on April 4. The award is given each year to a faculty member at Marquette University who demonstrates scholarly distinction in his or her respective field.

Dr. Fox has been a faculty member at Marquette for 33 years and is a nationally recognized leader in treatments for early childhood mental health problems. He founded the Behavior Clinic in 2003 in partnership with Penfield, and it serves over 400 children and their families each year. He also developed the Early Pathways program, which has been used as a model for treating children growing up in poverty and experiencing difficult mental health issues.

Commenting on the award, Dean Bill Henk noted, “Given Dr. Fox’s extensive record of scholarship and success in attracting external funding, it is extremely fitting that he receive the University’s most prestigious research recognition. He is a rare faculty member, one who not only excels as a scholar, but also as a teacher and as an unselfish provider of service to the institution and the community.”

The College of Education salutes Dr. Fox and thanks him for enriching our scholarly reputation.

For more information on Dr. Fox's accomplishments and the award, see Marquette Today's article on the Distinguished Scholars Reception.
About Marquette University College of Education
The College of Education is one of 11 colleges at Marquette University, Wisconsin's largest independent educational institution which enjoys a national reputation for excellence. With a mission of teaching, research and service benefitting both education and mental health in the community, the College of Education carries a deep commitment to justice and a rigorous intellectual grounding.

Contact: Calley Hostad, College of Education, Marquette University
PO Box 1881
Milwaukee, WI 53201
414-288-0659
cailin.hostad@marquette.edu