Looking forward to Current Tendencies II
August 11 - October 30, 2011

In the fall of 2011, the Haggerty Museum of Art will present the exhibition Current Tendencies II, a survey from Milwaukee. The exhibition will feature a Milwaukee artist working in a variety of media, including photography, sculpture, drawing, painting, printmaking, video, installation, and site-specific creations. The works of the artists will address a wide array of topics from the conflicts in the Middle East to evolving technologies, to race, gender, and family. Each artist has been paired with a Marquette professor, who will write a reflection of the artist’s work on the professor’s subject matter. This educational component of the exhibition is unique as it brings together the artist and a scholar working outside of the art world, bringing contemplations of philosophy, history, political science, theology, etc., to the exhibition. A publication containing these reflections, artists’ statements, and images of the artwork will be created and available to museum visitors throughout the duration of the exhibition.

The Haggerty Museum of Art will celebrate the prolific and influential careers of Milwaukee’s “first couple of painting” with the exhibition Interior/Exterior: featuring still life images by Ruth Grotenrath and scenes of Holy Hill by Schomer Lichtner. Showed side by side, the paintings reveal the couple’s shared interests and individual styles. Lichtner’s expansive exteriors are rendered in expressive, loose brushwork; Grotenrath’s interiors are intimate and orderly. The work of both artists, however, demonstrates a strong interest in color, pattern and nature.

Grotenrath (1912-1988) and Lichtner (1905-2006) began their careers as WPA muralists, influenced by Diego Rivera and the Mexican social realists. Lichtner, well-known for his whimsical portrayals of Balleteras and Holsteins cows, in his later work shows an interest in modernists such as Matisse and Dufy. Grotenrath’s work in the 1940s becomes more colorful and decorative. In the 1950s she began using water-based paint and created works inspired by Japanese prints and watercolors.

The works in the exhibition are a part of a larger Grotenrath and Lichtner collection recently gifted to the Haggerty by the Kohler Foundation.
