Scandinavian Photography Exhibition Captures Nordic Art and Culture

An exhibition of photographs by contemporary Scandinavian artists is the focus of Faces and Figures: Contemporary Scandinavian Photography, which opens at the Haggerty Museum on Thursday, January 24. The exhibition presented in conjunction with the fifth annual International Arts Festival in Milwaukee and the American-Scandinavian Foundation, New York will run until March 31.

The opening lecture “Welcome to the International Image Community: World Photography in the 21st Century” will be given by award-winning photo critic and author Allan Douglass Coleman at 6 p.m. in the Museum and is followed by a reception from 7 to 9 p.m.

The photographs in the exhibition are by 11 artists representing all 5 Scandinavian countries. The great variety of compositional styles in the exhibition is a tribute to the vitality of contemporary Scandinavian photographers.

To create his series Heroes, Icelandic photographer Spessi (Sigurtó Hálbjörnsson) returned to his hometown to photograph the people he knew as a child, emphasizing their ability to survive a life of 50 years at sea.

Sweede Christer Strömsholm provides a detached, yet sympathetic glimpse into the lives of a group of transvestites in Paris.

Sune Jonsson portrays the daily roles of people from small villages in Sweden with a respectful, straightforward approach, and the late Kare Kivijärvi documents the ruggedness of Norwegian fishermen and life in Bohemian Oslo.

Sweede Lars Tunbjörk captures humorous and touching moments in photographs of his countrymen, illustrating the depth of human emotions that the camera can capture in the hands of a skillful photographer.

Dr. Curtis L. Carter, director, stated “the Haggerty Museum is pleased to participate in the fifth annual International Arts Festival by presenting this exhibition of Scandinavian photography. This exhibition continues the Museum’s commitment to representing artists from a wide variety of countries to create awareness and understanding of various cultures.”

An illustrated exhibition catalogue produced by the American Scandinavian Foundation is available in the Haggerty Museum Gift Shop.

Work of Painter-Sculptor Guido Brink Celebrated in Haggerty Museum Exhibition

The paintings of the German-American artist Guido Brink will be exhibited at the Haggerty Museum when Fifty Years of Painting by Guido Brink opens on Thursday, January 10. The artist will speak at 6 p.m. in the Museum followed by a reception from 7 to 8 p.m.

This retrospective exhibition will focus on the artist’s paintings and celebrate the religious imagery and spirituality that have been a consistent theme in his work. Brink uses bold, calligraphic strokes of color and black to strengthen the subtle yet powerful ideas inherent in such paintings as Apocalyptic Symbols, 1955, and The Crown of Thorns, 1958.

Born in Düsseldorf, Germany in 1913, Brink came to the United States at the age of 16 to work for his uncle at the A.L. Brink Studios in New York, which produced glass for the Tiffany studios. He returned to Germany in 1934 and studied at the Staatliche Kunstkademie (State Academy of Fine Arts), Düsseldorf, under the neo-impressionist painter Maximilliam Clarenbach. After a fellowship at the Académie des Beaux-Arts in Paris, Brink moved to New York and then to Milwaukee in 1952 with his wife Elisabeth “Ello” Hutmacher. Brink taught at the Layton School of the Arts from 1955 to 1974, and was a founder and first president of the Milwaukee School of the Arts, now Milwaukee Institute of Art and Design. Brink’s paintings and sculptures are included in collections and exhibitions around the world.

The exhibition catalogue will include essays by Dr. Curtis L. Carter, director, and Dr. Annemarie Sawkins, associate curator, an artist’s biography, and color reproductions of Brink’s paintings. The exhibition, which is funded in part by the Marquette University Religious Commitment fund, continues through March 10.
From the Director

The Haggerty Museum exists today as a valuable resource for the Greater Milwaukee Community and is one of the showpieces of Marquette University. It provides a continuing stream of innovative exhibitions and educational programs. Students, with outreach programs for school children and adults. During the past 17 years, the Museum has established itself as one of Milwaukee’s important sources of culture and education through the arts. It is, along with the Helfaer Theater, a principal source of involvement in the arts for Marquette students. Additionally, the Haggerty shares its visiting artists and art scholars with the students of MIAD and UWM, as well as other community groups.

It is the season to remember that the funding for these enterprises must come from the Friends and Members of the Museum, as well as the Marquette University budget. For all who have given generously during the past year, thank you. At the present time, the Museum must raise its own funding for all exhibitions, educational programs, operations, and acquisitions. To augment these efforts, the University budget provides a major portion of staff salaries and administrative support.

If the Museum is to continue its services, it is essential that generous friends continue to support the Museum through their gifts and memberships. Major gifts of endowment funds will also be required for financial stability during the coming years. For those friends in a position to contribute larger gifts, it is important to remember the Museum in estate planning. Your gifts are essential to the future of the Haggerty.

Happy Holidays,

Curtis L. Carter, Director

Barzyk Exhibition Inspires Students’ Dance Piece

An original dance piece created by students from the MacDowell Montessori School in conjunction with the Haggerty Museum’s current exhibition The Search for a Personal Vision in Broadcast Television: Fred Barzyk, was presented in the Museum galleries November 26 through November 30.

Students of varying ages worked on and rehearsed the project since early September under the direction of professional dance artist-educator and MacDowell artist-in-residence Jeni Frazee, Kristine Snapp, MacDowell art teacher, served as artistic and costume consultant.

Local filmmaker Renato Umali, under the direction of Fred Barzyk, documented the choreographic process on camera and worked with the students to create video art pieces that were incorporated into the final work. The entire multi-level Museum was used as a rehearsal and performance space.

William Couper Sculpture Acquired by Museum

Visitors can now view the Haggerty Museum’s most recently acquired sculpture, William Couper’s marble Bust of a Woman in the salon style Old Masters Gallery.

Bust of a Woman was given by Patricia Zenda Dugan in memory of Marquette alumni Thomas E. Dugan, M.D., and Jo Curtis Dugan. The sculpture was made in Florence in 1882 from Carrara marble as a companion piece to the sculpture Princess, a portrait bust based on a poem by William Tennyson. It can be seen at the National Museum of American Art, Smithsonian Institute, Washington, D.C.

William Couper is one of the most noted sculptors of the late 19th through early 20th centuries. He is best known for his sculpture of a Confederate soldier standing atop the Confederate Monument in Norfolk, Virginia. His sculptures can also be seen at the Sailors Memorial at the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, and the American Museum of Natural History in New York City.

Couper’s piece joins a sculpture of Figaro, ca. 1873 by French sculptor Jean-Baptiste Carpeaux (1827-1875) given by Catherine and David A. Straz, Jr. in 1996, and a bronze Pieta, 1945 after Michelangelo’s Pieta at St. Peter’s Basilica in Rome.

Make Plans for Springtime in Venice and the Veneto

Expanding on last spring’s spectacular trip to Tuscany, the Haggerty Museum’s Friends Travel Committee has announced plans for a trip to Venice and the Veneto leaving on Monday, May 6 and returning on Friday, May 17. Once again, the trip will be designed and co-lead by Elaine Ruffolo, director of the Syracuse University Florence Program in Renaissance Art and resident director of the Smithsonian Institution’s Northern Italy and Florence programs. A Milwaukee native, Ruffolo is a nationally recognized art historian.

The trip will feature tours of the landmark churches, museums and galleries of Venice, Verona, Padua, Vicenza, and Mantua with expert art guides. The climax of the trip will be a special day on the shores of Lake Garda and wine tasting in the hills of Valpolicella.

The price per person is $4,099, single occupancy an additional $750, including roundtrip airfare from Chicago, all lodgings, admissions and ground transportation, five lunches, three dinners, and breakfast daily.

The trip is limited to 30 participants. Call 288-7290 for more information.

Art Associates Enjoy TV ‘n ’Tails

Inspired by the current Haggerty exhibition, The Search for a Personal Vision in Broadcast Television: Fred Barzyk, the Haggerty Art Associates sponsored their fall social event TV ‘n ’Tails on Friday, November 9 in the Museum Galleries.

The event featured jazz piano, TV and cocktails, hors d’œuvres, and raffle items and was enjoyed by Art Associate members, a group of young professionals who support the Museum’s exhibition programs and outreach in the community through special projects and events.

Committee members included John Eastberg, Chairman; Maria Cyganik; George Gaspar, Jr.; Jennifer Miner; Sheila O’Connell; Patti Pavlic; Kate Schroeder; Cathy Shaw; and Sheila Taphorn.
Video Art Shines at Haggerty Gala

The magnificent tent installed on the Mary B. Finnigan parking lot adjacent to the Museum was the star attraction at the 17th annual Haggerty Museum Fall Gala on Friday, September 28. Conceived as a way to accommodate more guests, the tent was the perfect answer as close to 200 Museum supporters responded to the invitation to “Put Yourself in the Picture!” to celebrate the current exhibition The Search for a Personal Vision in Broadcast Television: Fred Barzyk.

Barzyk, a pioneer in the development of broadcast television, a graduate of Marquette University and native of Milwaukee, was the guest of honor at the Gala as the recipient of the Karios Award. The Award recognizes individuals and organizations who have advanced the fine arts through distinguished services to the Haggerty Museum and other fine arts-related activities in the community.

TV cameras and monitors installed throughout the galleries captured the festivities during the cocktail hour as guests viewed and bid on silent auction items. They were delighted and surprised to see themselves “in the picture” as this footage was replayed during dinner catered by Lee Johns. Following dinner, guests danced in the tent to the music of the James Kishline Orchestra.

Karios Award honoree Fred Barzyk traded quips and fond memories with Robert A. Wild, S.J., president of the University and presenter of the Award, and Dr. Curtis L. Carter, Museum director. Local TV personality Jim Peck, also a Marquette graduate, served as master of ceremonies and introduced Dr. Robert Pavlic who presided at the voice auction.

George and Anna Clair Gaspar were chairpersons of the Gala, assisted by co-chairpersons Daniel and Judy Steininger. Robert W. Baird Co. was corporate sponsor, and individual and corporate underwriters included Brookbank Foundation, Inc.; Central City Construction, Inc.; Peggy Haggerty; and Special Editions, Inc.

Over $38,000 was raised at the event and will be used for the Museum’s Exhibition Fund.

A special treat of Godiva chocolates provided by Godiva Chocolatier awaited guests at the chocolate tasting table at the completion of dinner.

Haggerty Museum Grounds Home to New Outdoor Sculpture

The southwest lawn of the Haggerty Museum of Art is the new home of the sculpture Rainbow Machine by Chicago artist Joseph Burlini. Created in 1993, the sculpture originally occupied a prominent location on Michigan Avenue in Chicago and was installed at the Museum on August 14. The sculpture is comprised of four 12-foot poles. Six-foot steel arms adorned with holographic decals sway on top of the poles and create a rainbow effect in the sunlight. Unilet Communications, Inc., gifted the sculpture to the Museum through the assistance of Marquette alumnus and Friends board member Thomas Monahan, a Chicago art collector.

Commenting on the gift, Museum director Dr. Curtis L. Carter said, “This sculpture will enliven the physical environment of Marquette University campus life through its kinetic forms. It is visible to passersby from Highway 94 as well as to campus visitors and students.”

Burlini (b.1937) is well known and respected in the Midwest and throughout the United States. A graduate of the Art Institute of Chicago, he taught sculpture at the Illinois Institute of Technology. Major commissions of his work include Walt Disney Studios, the U.S. Air Force, the Pentagon, Chicago Symphony Orchestra, and the University of Chicago.

Haggerty Joins Neighborhood Program

The Haggerty Museum of Art in collaboration with the City of Milwaukee’s Targeted Investment Neighborhood Program (TIN), Milwaukee Art Museum, Danceworks on Tap, MacDowell Montessori School, and the Layton Boulevard West Neighbors presented SHOWDOWN, an art event for all ages, on Saturday, December 1 in the former Showdown Lanes, 3730 W. National Ave.

The event included workshops, dance performances, and an exhibition featuring the work of local, national and international artists.

Through this event, SHOWDOWN’s participating organizations aimed to increase public awareness of the TIN program and its associated neighborhoods while strengthening community pride and participation through the arts as well as other community development efforts.

Haggerty Museum and Public School Collaborate on Exhibition

The Haggerty Museum has collaborated with Elm Creative Arts Elementary School, a Milwaukee Public School that emphasizes high academic achievement promoting activity and self-expression, in organizing an exhibition of paintings, drawings and sculpture by Milwaukee artist David Niec.

Earth → Sky → Time opened at the school on Thursday, November 8 and will continue until January 25.

The exhibition reflects Niec’s interest in nature and its inherent processes of growth and decay.

The Elm School gallery, located at 900 W. Walnut Avenue, is open to the public Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Student Art Club Designs Holiday Cards and T-shirts

Members of Marquette’s student-organized The Art Club (TAC) have designed holiday cards depicting Christmas and winter scenes at Marquette University. The cards will be on sale at the Museum Gift Shop, Sweeney’s Bookstore, and the Golden Eagle Book Store in the Student Union.

Proceeds will be used to further the development of TAC, which was formed last spring through the efforts of seniors Jeanine and Julie Hattas. Lynne Shumow, the Haggerty’s curator of education, serves as director of the club. The purpose of TAC is to provide an outlet for student artists to display and practice their work as well as to provide members with the tools necessary to develop their skills.

Members sponsored an Arts and Craft Fair at the Alumni Memorial Union on November 9 and an Inner-City School craft project on November 27 and 28.
Staff News

Dr. Curtis L. Carter, Haggerty Museum director, attended the 21st International Colloquium of the Slovenian Society of Aesthetics in Ljubljana, Slovenia on October 18-20 where he gave a presentation on Marcel Duchamp, titled Duchamp in America.

Dr. Carter also served as a delegate to the American Council of Learned Societies CEO strategic planning session on the future of learned societies and universities in the 21st century, held in Boise, Idaho in November.

On Saturday, September 17, Dr. Annemarie Sawkins, associate curator, helped to critique the work of area artists together with Peter Doroshenko, Marita Knode, Mark Lawson, and Joan Dobkin as part of “Open Portfolio Reviews” at UWM.

Dr. Carter Tries a Harley

HAGGERTY PARTICIPATES IN FRENCH CULTURAL MONTH

A table of Sèvres porcelain produced by the Royal Manufactory was on display in the Old Master Gallery during the month of November as part of a celebration of French culture. This is the third year that the Haggerty has placed special emphasis on French and francophone art in the collection during the month of November. This year, philosophy students in Dr. Souffrant’s “Special Questions in Philosophy: Liberal Democracy and Beyond” class attended a presentation on Sèvres porcelain as a symbol of royal wealth and power by Dr. Annemarie Sawkins, associate curator. The Sèvres porcelain in the Haggerty Museum collection was given by Dr. Kenneth Maier.

Looking Forward to...
