They're your possessions. Be sure to protect them.

Many renters assume the possessions in their rented apartments or condos are covered by their landlords' insurance. However, landlords usually insure only the structure and attached fixtures — not your contents. That means your jewelry, clothing, furniture, computers, and other personal property are not covered. In the event of a fire or theft, you would have to replace these items with money out of your own pocket.

Now, you can get the protection you need with renters insurance. Because you have access to this unique benefit through your employer, you can take advantage of great coverage at special group rates. Renters insurance is more economical, since you're insuring only the contents of your home,* not the building itself.

Aside from your valuable possessions, you'd also be covered for personal liability, which would protect you against damages from lawsuits.* This comprehensive coverage includes medical payments to others, payment of defense costs in the event of a lawsuit, and much more.*

You'd even be protected against identity theft with ID Theft and Credit Protection* — at no extra cost! It features one-on-one personal support and guidance from an identity theft specialist who would help you until your name and credit had been cleared.

As you can see, this is smart and valuable coverage to have as a renter. Call us today and find out more.
