ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

new 2006

The Native Catholic survey projects are outstanding examples of professional cooperation. We at Marquette University extend our gratitude to all of the many archivists, curators, and librarians who have participated. Their receptiveness to inquiries and willingness to provide information and allow on-site inspection of the collections in their custody made these guides possible and truly products of their efforts as well as ours. We also extend special thanks to the following whose encouragement and guidance contributed immensely to the ongoing success of these survey projects.

- Reverend Robert J. Callen, S.J., Archivist, Wisconsin Jesuit Province, preliminary United States survey, 1976-1979: initial vision for guide series
- Reverend Francis Paul Prucha, S.J., Professor of History, Marquette University: preliminary United States survey, 1976-1979, and comprehensive Midwest survey, 1980-1981
- Monsignor Paul A. Lenz, Director, Bureau of Catholic Indian Missions: preliminary United States survey, 1976-1979, comprehensive Midwest survey, 1980-1981, and comprehensive Western survey, 2004-2006
- Herbert Hoover, Professor of History, University of South Dakota: comprehensive Midwest survey, 1980-1981
- Reverend Joel Schmolke, O.F.M., Archivist, Sacred Heart Franciscan Province: comprehensive Midwest survey
- John Fleckner, CA, Archivist, National Museum of National History, Smithsonian Institution: comprehensive Western survey, 2004-2006
- Sister Kateri Mitchell, S.S.A., Director, Tekakwitha Conference: comprehensive Western survey, 2004-2006
- Bishop Donald E. Pelotte, S.S.S., Diocese of Gallup: comprehensive Western survey, 2004-2006
- Christopher Vecsey, Professor of Religion and Native American Studies, Colgate University: comprehensive Western survey, 2004-2006, and preface to guide series

Funding for these surveys was provided by Marquette University and the generous support of these foundations. Without this crucial support, these guides would not have been possible.

- De Rancé, Incorporated: preliminary United States survey, 1976-1979
- National Endowment for the Humanities: comprehensive Midwest survey, 1980-1981
- National Historical Publications and Records Commission: comprehensive Western survey, 2004-2006
