Natural Family Planning

Application process for the Marquette Method Teacher Training Program

The Marquette Institute for Natural Family Planning (NFP) teacher training program is a professional online educational experience based on the standards of the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB).

Overall Course Description:

Foundations and Principles and Practical Applications courses are online with scheduled group meetings. Foundations and Principles teach the philosophical underpinnings based on natural law and evidence-based practice. Evidence-based protocols and standards will assist professional nurses, advanced practice nurses, medical students, physicians, physician's assistants, pharmacists, registered dietitians, and other healthcare professionals help women and couples to monitor their fertility to avoid or achieve pregnancy, identify and treat fertility-related health problems within their scope of practice. Students will be knowledgeable of the: physiological, philosophical, spiritual, psychological and behavioral aspects important to teaching and using NFP. A course on medical applications is available for student teachers who have completed Foundations and Principles and are actively working through Practical Applications.

Learning objectives: Foundations and Principles, Practical Applications and Medical Applications

1. The provider will feel confident to dialogue with the woman/couple about the physiological, philosophical, and conceptual underpinnings of NFP and the Marquette Model (MM).
2. The provider will be able to implement and assess the delivery of NFP and MM services.
3. The provider will be able to identify unique diagnostic patterns of the menstrual cycle that reveals common health problems.

Target Audience: Physicians, physician assistants, advanced practice nurses, nurses with a baccalaureate degree or higher interested in advancing their knowledge in women's/couples reproductive health.

Course format: These online courses are offered as cohorts and begin in the spring and fall semesters. Students will have a chance to work in groups and meet with faculty regularly.
