Course Description: Global political events since 1989 seem to have confirmed a political victory for capitalism. Yet even champions of the free market acknowledge that its seeming triumph has itself been accompanied by a wide range of moral and political challenges. This course will focus on several of the seminal philosophical arguments both for and against capitalism in an effort to better understand both the benefits and the ills for which capitalism has been both praised and blamed. Yet in so doing, our goal will be to transcend narrowly partisan arguments for or against and to ascend to a consideration of the implications of capitalism on the central questions of political philosophy, with special focus on the questions of whether capitalism promotes or inhibits the pursuit of virtue and excellence, whether capitalism promotes or inhibits the quest for justice, and whether capitalism promotes or inhibits the realization of human freedom.

Attendance and Expectations: Attendance at every meeting is expected. Roll will be taken at each meeting and excessive absences will result in your termination from the class. But students are expected to do more than simply show up; thorough preparation prior to each meeting and active participation while in class are also necessary if one hopes to master the material and receive a decent grade. In preparing for class you should read assignments with the maximum possible care. To help you prepare most effectively for class discussions I will distribute a short set of study questions on the assigned reading prior to each meeting. In class you are expected to listen carefully to the contributions of your colleagues and to engage others through your own contributions. Students can expect to be called on if they do not volunteer to speak. Those inexperienced in or uncomfortable with talking in class are encouraged to come to see me early in the semester so that we can together develop useful strategies for effective participation.

Requirements and Grading: The final course grade will be comprised of four components: a 4-5 page paper due at midterm (20%), an 8-10 page paper due at the end of term (30%), the average of three short (1-1.5 page) response papers (25%), and class participation (25%). Note that this means that the quality of your class participation can affect your final grade in either an upward or downward direction. As the course proceeds we will discuss the standards by which both written work and class participation will be evaluated. Finally: late papers will not be accepted unless I authorize an extension in advance.

Texts: The following required texts are available at BookMarq; these editions are strongly suggested.

Commerce, Culture, Liberty: Readings on Capitalism before Adam Smith, ed. Clark (Liberty Fund, 2003)
Jean-Jacques Rousseau, Basic Political Writings, tr. Donald A. Cress (Hackett, 1987)
Adam Smith, The Theory of Moral Sentiments (Liberty Fund, 1984)
Adam Smith, The Wealth of Nations (Liberty Fund, 1981-4)
