UNDERGRADUATE COURSE DESCRIPTION

Term: Spring 2014
Instructors: Team-taught (Joshua Burns, Robert Mason, Danielle Nussberger, Irfan Omar with Juliana Vazquez and Nathan Thiel)
Course #: THEO 1001
Sections: 101-106 (These sections include auto-enroll into discussion section 601 also)
Course Title: Introduction to Theology

Description:

These team-taught sections of THEO 1001 will introduce you to multiple perspectives on how theological reflection provides an indispensable lens for making sense of our lives and for understanding the role played in them by Christianity and other religions. The teaching team includes Christians from various Church traditions, one or more scholars from other religious traditions, laymen and women and a Jesuit. This class meets three days a week. All sections will meet together on Wednesdays for a thematic lecture that will introduce you to key theological texts, concepts, and approaches. On Mondays and Fridays you will meet in smaller groups for further reflection on those key texts, concepts, and approaches.
