UNDERGRADUATE COURSE DESCRIPTION

Term: Spring 2016
Instructor: Ryan Hemmer
Course #: THEO 2310
Section: 107
Course Title: Explorations in Christian Theology
Topic: Theology, Philosophy, and Science

Description:

This course will explore avenues for inter-disciplinary collaboration between theology, philosophy, and the natural and human sciences opened up by the thought of the twentieth century Jesuit theologian and philosopher, Bernard Lonergan. A thorough introduction to Lonergan will be given, with specific attention to the re-orientation and integration of human inquiry made possible by his work. Specific applications will be made to physics, depth psychology, cultural and social science, and economics. How theology relates to, interacts with, is enriched by, and contributes uniquely to these disciplines will be highlighted.