Course Title:
Christian Discipleship

Description:

In this service-learning course, students will examine the nature of Christian discipleship, reflecting on the ways in which academic theology and experiential learning can mutually illuminate the Christian call to a life of holiness, faith, service, and justice. Course topics include the call to discipleship, the identity of Jesus (whom Christian disciples are called to follow), the means of specifying Jesus’ call, and specific ethical applications of the call to discipleship in contemporary life (covering topics like work, economics, politics, health care, etc.). Course requirements will allow students to integrate class material with their service-learning experiences.
