Term: Fall 2013
Instructor: Dr. Mickey L. Mattox
Course #: THEO 4250/5250
Section: 101
Course Title: Martin Luther

Description:
This course offers an introduction to Martin Luther as a theologian and churchman. Students will become familiar with the central themes and problems in Luther's life and thought through classroom lectures, and through the reading and discussion of texts by and about him. We will also examine enduring images of Luther inside and outside Protestantism, particularly that of Roman Catholic Luther scholarship. Students will be challenged to take stock of Luther's significance for contemporary theology.

Class time will be divided roughly equally between lecture and guided discussion of assigned readings. Students are expected to adopt and practice the disciplines appropriate to serious intellectual inquiry.

Assignments and/or Examinations: A combination of shorter papers and exams
