DEPARTMENT OF THEOLOGY

UNDERGRADUATE COURSE DESCRIPTION

Term: Fall 2011
Instructor: Mattox
Course #: THEO 4290/5290
Section: 101/101
Course Title: Studies in Historical Theology: C.S. Lewis as a Christian Thinker

Description:

This course offers students to read widely across the writings of C.S. Lewis, including such well-known texts as the Chronicles of Narnia, Mere Christianity, and so on.

The course attempts to appraise Lewis’s works from the vantage point of his particular Christian way of thinking through all sorts of issues that are still relevant today, from the question of faith and science, to proofs for the existence of God, the meaning of sex and the distinction of the sexes, evolution and the nature of the cosmos, and so on.
