GRADUATE COURSE DESCRIPTION

Term: Fall 2011
Instructor: Dr. Andrei Orlov
Course #: THEO 6120
Section: 701
Course Title: New Testament Method

Context:
The first part of this course will focus on main historico-critical methodological approaches in contemporary New Testament scholarship (text, source, form, and redaction criticism, among others). The second part of the course will be concentrating on Jewish pseudepigraphical traditions and their formative value for New Testament theology.

Format:
Seminar - a mixture of introductory lectures, discussions, and student led presentations

Language prerequisites:
Greek is required for Biblical division students. All students will be encouraged to utilize relevant sources in French and/or German in preparation of their longer papers