

Lonergan, Philosophy, and Theology: A Colloquium

With the encouragement of graduate students in the Philosophy and Theology Departments, the Marquette Lonergan Project is sponsoring a colloquium on March 1-2, "Lonergan, Philosophy, and Theology." The colloquium aims at fostering dialogue between the work of Jesuit philosopher-theologian Bernard Lonergan and philosophical figures and issues that are important in contemporary theology. We have chosen Hegel, Heidegger, and Habermas as figures whom we wish to engage, and have invited speakers familiar with those figures and with Lonergan. All events will be held in Raynor Library, Beaumier Suites B&C.

The schedule of events is as follows:

Thursday, March 1, 4:00 P.M.: Mark Morelli, Loyola Marymount University, "Meeting Hegel Halfway: The Intimate Complexity of Lonergan's Relationship with Hegel"

Responses from Matthew Peters, graduate student, Philosophy, and Ben Suriano, graduate student, Theology.

Friday, March 2, 10:00A.M.: Michael Sharkey, University of Wisconsin, Platteville, "Heidegger, Lonergan, and the Notion of Being"

Responses from Prof. Sebastian Luft, Philosophy Department, and Andrew Barrette, graduate student, Southern Illinois University

Friday, March 2, 2:00 P.M.: William Rehg, S.J., Saint Louis University, "Lonergan and Habermas: Contributions to Understanding the Moral Domain"

Responses from Prof. Pol Vandavelde, Philosophy Department, and Prof. Gregory O'Meara, S.J., Law School
