

Master in Management

Marquette's Master in Management (MiM) prepares you to be a principled and strategic leader with the skillset, mindset and essential business acumen needed to succeed across employers and industries. Through human capital strategies, change management and organizational development activities, you'll gain the knowledge and skills to lead a diverse workforce and foster a climate of inclusion, bringing out the best in both individuals and teams.

"The program is uniquely designed to meet the ever-growing demand for leaders who can make a difference at every level of an organization. Whether focused on building core business skills, intensive leadership development or a flexible combination of both, MiM graduates are principled leaders who can navigate and thrive in any environment."

Dr. Gary Adams, MiM Faculty

"The most meaningful courses for me were those where we had to look within and think critically about who we are and who we want to become ... I am able to apply the concepts I learned on a daily basis."

Kristina Sasich, Manager, Legal Support at Foley & Lardner LLP

"Teaching in the MiM program at Marquette is exciting for me because it offers an exceptional opportunity for students to gain a versatile set of business skills in a supportive and values-driven environment."

Dr. Kristie Rogers, Professor of Management

"There are a lot of real-world challenges that this program has helped me with. Taking classes part time while working full time has allowed me to apply the lessons from each class to my work. I now feel much more confident in my understanding of management and leadership."

Austin Amato, Laboratory Coordinator at Medical College of Wisconsin
