Presentation Agenda

- Provide a general overview of backward design.
- Explain the importance of learning outcomes and how they guide the design process.
- Provide best practices for organizing your blended or online course.
- Explain strategies to optimize lecture materials for blended and flexible learning.
- Discuss when and why to use synchronous instruction.

Starting With the End First

Backward Design Model

Questions for Alignment

- What teaching strategies will you use to introduce your students to these concepts or skills?
- What activities and assignments will encourage deepened engagement with these concepts or practice of these skills?
- Where in the course is it appropriate to ask students to demonstrate their progress toward these goals (in ways that are ungraded and graded)?
- What kind of feedback from you will help students to improve their progress?

Course Alignment Matrix

Course Alignment Matrix

Important! You will complete this matrix over a period of three assignments. Be sure to review the detailed assignment directions for each assignment before completing that section of the matrix.

Course Alignment Matrix: Objectives

Course Alignment Matrix: Assessment

Course Alignment Matrix: Instructional Materials

Complete this matrix to demonstrate the alignment between course-level instructional objectives, module-level learning outcomes, level of Bloom's for each set of objectives, and assessments for the entire course. You will identify instructional materials for the demonstration module only.

Alignment refers to the direct link between the objectives, the assessments and measurements, and the resources and materials. Under the principle of alignment, the instructional materials and assessments are driven by and support the objectives.

THINK IN CONCEPTS RATHER THAN LECTURES

When creating or adding content for online/hybrid delivery:

- Think about the size of content. Can this be chunked as concepts or theories, deliverable in small pieces.
- Think about the mode of delivery. Can delivery method be varied? Video, graphic, pod cast, study guide, etc?
- Convert Power Points into Study Guides

Optimizing Lectures

What do I do with my lectures if they aren't in person?

Select	Select the portions that are specific to you (ie. Stories, examples)
Make	Make discussions or activities from them
Chunk	Chunk them into smaller portions
Create	Create alternatives for lectures

BLENDED CLASS: (MWF)

- MONDAY:
  - Face-to-face lecture and set-up activity for the week.
- WEDNESDAY:
  - 1/3 of the class has a discussion with the professor face-to-face while 2/3 have asynchronous, student-led discussions online using D2L or Teams.
- FRIDAY:
  - Class meets using Teams to do small-group and partner discussions.

SAME CLASS MOVED ONLINE

- MONDAY:
  - Watch a short online lecture and participate in an online activity with your classmates (a debate, etc.). The online activity could be synchronous (Teams/D2L) or asynchronous (D2L).
- WEDNESDAY:
  - 1/3 of the class has a synchronous Teams discussion with the professor, 2/3 have asynchronous discussion .
- FRIDAY:
  - Class meets synchronously on Teams to do small-group and partner discussions.
