

Marquette University Law School's Pro Bono Society serves to recognize the pro bono service provided by students and faculty to underscore the Law School's professional and Jesuit mission of seeking to develop "men and women for others." Pro bono publico literally means "for the public good." In the context of the legal profession, pro bono refers to providing legal assistance free of charge to underserved individuals, charitable organization, nonprofit agencies, or other similar entities.

To qualify for membership, students must complete and report a minimum of 50 hours of volunteer law-related services during their tenure at Marquette University Law School. The name of those students who recorded 120 services or more are noted below with an asterisk to reflect their distinguished service. Students who are members of the Pro Bono Society wear a purple honor cord over their academic gown at graduation.

Marquette University Law School proudly recognizes this year's graduates whose generosity of time and talent qualifies them for membership into the Pro Bono Society.
