

GasDay helps We Energies to deliver natural gas efficiently

Mohammad Saber, doctoral student in electrical and computer engineering and member of GasDay, has worked to incorporate probabilistic forecasting into GasDay's services to utilities like We Energies. When Saber chose this topic for his Ph.D. dissertation, he set out to develop a way to present a more complete view of the risks that could lead to over- or under-supply, helping natural gas companies cut down on costs.

Read more online.

- January 2018 AHOYA! ENGINEERS