

DIY arrangements may be fine for plane tickets but feeling nervous about deciding if you need travel vaccines and malaria pills?

Visit the MU Travel Clinic

The travel clinic at Marquette University is a comprehensive service provided to students, faculty, and staff who plan to travel abroad for study, volunteering, service learning, or just for fun.

- A travel clinic visit includes personalized preventive health recommendations based on our instant access to destination-specific medical and safety information from over 100 international health resources, as well as updates regarding current disease outbreaks. This also includes real-time comprehensive summaries about health risks in the countries you are visiting.
- We can provide vaccines that protect against:
 - Yellow fever
 - Hepatitis A
 - Meningitis
 - Typhoid
 - Polio
 - Japanese encephalitis
 - Rabies
 - Updates for routine childhood and adult vaccines
- Other services include malaria prescriptions and traveler's diarrhea treatment. Routine vaccinations can also be updated at this time (including tetanus, pertussis, MMR, chickenpox, influenza, and Hepatitis B).
- For the best protection against disease, it is recommended that you make an appointment at least 6 weeks prior to your departure, which will allow you to develop full immunity from the vaccines. However, we also accommodate the spontaneous traveler with "last minute" appointments.
- Cost for this service includes a modest office visit fee and any vaccination or medication charges. For more information on pricing, call MU Medical Clinic at (414) 288-7184, or visit our website at <http://www.marquette.edu/medical-clinic/travel-clinic.shtml>
- If you need a physical for a VISA or study abroad program, we are able to provide this service at a separate appointment.
- Note: Travel to Western Europe, Canada, Australia, and New Zealand generally do not require travel clinic services.
